

Inspiration and Dedication Changes Lives

Dear Majorie Kinnan Rowlings,

Life in 2020 has been devastatingly hard, especially since this year has been like no other. We have seen many disastrous events and social issues, but the event that impacted me the most is Coronavirus, otherwise known as COVID-19. Coronavirus prevented many people, including myself, from seeing their families and going to school virtually instead of in person. However, you have inspired me to make a difference by becoming an author just like you and writing books to make people happier in such an uncertain time.

Coronavirus has been going on for about eight months, three-quarters of a year. The CDC has issued many reports about the severity of COVID-19 that constantly rises, putting everyone in grave danger. It has been mandated to wear a mask, social distance, and not travel or go to certain places such as bars and roller rinks. Deaths go up and so do cases, every single day. People including me had to go to virtual school for months, and a lot of them couldn't see their family and friends. COVID-19 brought chaos to many places, as well as many people who could no longer live their lives as they normally would. Some got depressed, some weren't as affected as others. But all people were affected.

You, Majorie Kinnan Rowlings, inspired me to become an author like you and write books that will cheer people up. I was inspired by your experiences in rural Florida because you wrote about the setting with such a descriptive choice of words. You won many awards and loved to share your novels with the people in your life. You always made sure to appreciate the life you had, and live it well. You were so involved and fascinated with the nature of Cross Creek that you decided to share your experiences and fascination with others, making the literature world a mystical place full of nature, and magic.

I plan to make an impact on this world during such a difficult and uncertain time of COVID-19 by writing books that involve nature like you did. I am currently working on one called The Way of the Wind, which you inspired. It will be a novel, the genre will be fantasy, and it will be all about nature and adventure. Many people think that this isn't normal behavior for an eleven-year-old, but you worked hard to accomplish your many achievements in life. You inspired me to work hard, and never give up hope. You also inspired me to take a stand, hold my head high, and never look back on all the haters.

In conclusion, 2020 has been a crazy year but with a little inspiration, we can all come together to find our talent(s) and make a difference. Thank you Majorie Kinnan Rowlings for inspiring me to make a difference. You will always be remembered with love and affection for inspiring many people and shaping this world into a better place.
